PREFACE.

To the people of Biddeford and Saco, and to the strangers within our gates, greeting. We submit the directory for 1896, the 13th in the series, with full confidence that it will be appreciated as the best and most complete that has ever been offered, and that it will be found in every way useful to the public and advantageous to our advertisers. All that experience could suggest and ample facilities provide has been availed of to produce an up-to-date directory, meeting the requirements and commensurate with the importance of these enterprising twin cities. Many of the mercantile and commercial houses and professional men have availed themselves of our advertising pages. They realize the superior advantages thus afforded for reaching the public. There is a permanency and stability in these advertisments that transcends ephemeral announcements in newspapers or circulars. Directories are in a sense histories, and as the files are looked over in after years the names of the men who advertise will stand out as the representative and substantial business men of the community.

Of course a directory is a book constantly referred to. Strangers are obliged to consult it, and citizens cannot do without it. The book which we have the pleasure of presenting this year we believe will reflect credit upon the cities it represents and meet general approval. We appreciate the aid extended to to us by our business patrons and others in our efforts to produce a first class book, and, realizing that there is always room for improvement, we promise even a better work next issue.

PILLSBURY'S

ALWAYS

The Best.

For nearly twenty-five years it has maintained its supremacy over ALL OTHER FLOURS. Other brands may have temporarily equalled it in quality, but only for a limited time. The difficulty in competing with PILLSBURY'S BEST compells others, first, to lower their price, and then to lower their grade to correspond. Year in and year out, PILLSBURY'S BEST has always maintained its HIGHEST STANDARD.
